Randolph Charges Traitors Foment Defense Strikes

West Virginian Demands End of Labor Troubles In Grave Crisis

Scores "Racketeers and Saboteurs" and Urges Government To Take Drastic Action at Once

LOUISVILLE, Ky., June 3. (P)—Rep. Jennings Randolph (D-W.Va.) today advocated drastic action to stop strikes in defense industries which, he said, were fomented by a minority of "racketeers, saboteurs and traitors."

An outspoken administration supported Randolph, just a week after the president's declaration of an unlimited national emergency asserted, "if the administration will say strikes must stop at a certain time, or else, we can whip this problem."

He was quick to add that he blamed neither labor nor capital for the wave of strikes since January 2 which, he estimated, had cost 6,700,000 man-days of labor in industries supplying materials to the army.

Death Asked for Saboteurs

Earlier, the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association before which Randolph spoke, had adopted a series of resolutions calling for the "summary execution of convicted saboteurs" and the establishment of martial law where interference with national defense requirements are involved.

The N.A.A., with whose meeting the annual "American Aviation Forum" is being held, is the largest organization in the United States formed to foster aviation progress.

"Last November," said Randolph, "when the first of the strikes in defense factories occurred, we should have stepped in. If we had shown we meant business, the strikes would not have spread. That particular strike cost us twenty-five training planes in twelve days."

"I am not saying either capital or labor is at fault. But whereas the right to strike in peacetime in private industry is precious, it is absolutely wrong in principle and disastrous to our country in time of war."

Racketeers Foment Strikes

Asserting strikes were fomented by a minority of "racketeers, saboteurs and traitors," Randolph said Harry Bridges, the West Coast maritime labor leader, "ought to have been deported long ago."

In conversation afterward he pointed out that Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.) chairman of the House Naval Affairs committee, had pending a bill requiring a "cooling off" period before strikes when differences occurred between capital and labor.

In another address Brig. Gen. Donald H. Connolly, federal administrator of civil aeronautics, said the army air corps had put its stamp of approval on the government's civilian pilot training program. He quoted Brig. Gen. Davenport Johnson of the corps as having said two weeks ago that only twelve per cent of the program students are eliminated in army primary schools as against thirty-nine per cent among those who lack the beginner's instruction.

FDR Doubts Maine Ever Had Drought

WASHINGTON, June 3. (P)—A woman correspondent told President Roosevelt today that a drought had lessened the water supply for power purposes in Maine. She wanted to know whether this might cause a revival of the Passamaquoddy tide-harnessing project.

The president, a broad grin on his face, replied that even in prohibition days there never had been a drought in Maine.

SHOT DOWN BY NAZIS

French Get Free Hand To Defend Syrian Outposts

Germany Agrees To Permit Military Attack on British Forces

BERLIN, June 3. (P)—An intimation that the French would be given a free hand to defend Syria or other outposts against any British attack was made today by authorized German sources with the declaration:

"... We have Marshal Petain's and Admiral Darlan's statements that they are ready to defend all their territory. Germany, although a victor, is ready to concede this sacred right and duty to every nation to the French themselves."

Whether and in what manner France may desire to throw into the scales the weight of German-French relations developed in the course of the past year is something one cannot discuss theoretically. Only a practical case can show."

German Position Secret

As to whether Germany herself can afford to let Britain seize Syria, this was the response:

"We don't cross bridges before we come to them."

Earlier, authorized persons here had thus dismissed reports abroad that Nazi motorized infantry had landed in Syria at the port of Latakia:

"It is unthinkable that this corresponds to the facts."

While Germany and Italy had not outlined their next military move, whether it would be against Cyprus, Egypt or England proper remained problematical, the result of yesterday's Brenner Pass meeting between Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini were hidden in silence.

The German press even before the fall of Crete had called attention to other British bastions in the Eastern Mediterranean. For weeks it has made no mention of invasion of England—a circumstance which alone has kept foreign observers alert to that standing threat.

Freighters Carry Troops

Now a dozen freighters flying swastika flags have been assigned to carry German troops and heavy military equipment from Rumania's Black Sea port of Constanta to Syria.

The plan is for them to stop off in Italy's Dodecanese islands and then run the British naval patrol at night. The British trip can be made in a week, it was said here.

"Authorized Nazi sources in Berlin said of the Syrian landing reports, "it is unthinkable that this corresponds to the facts."

However, they intimated that France would be conceded the "sacred right" of defending her territory against the British. This was in line with a blast from French-controlled Beirut radio, accusing the British of preparing an attack on Syria, and with dispatches from Vichy telling of increased tension between the former Allies.

Three-Pointed Attack

The reports here said that the German air force would seek to keep open a lane of safety for its troops from the Balkans to Syria, and that once established in Syria the infantry and air force could threaten Iraq, Palestine and Cyprus simultaneously.

Observers here already have told as many as 200 German planes in the Aleppo area, near the Turkish frontier, last week. They were said to include bombers, fighters and transports. Some, but not all, were said to be shuttling between Aleppo and Iraq, where the pro-Axis government was defeated by the British last week-end.

It was presumed here that the planes which the Germans sent to

Roosevelt Backs Plan To Provide Camp Recreation

Part of Our Total Defense Program, President Declares

NEW YORK, June 3. (P)—President Roosevelt declared tonight that "because recreation is part of our total defense program, it is the first concern of every citizen." In a message opening the $10,765,000 campaign of the United Service Organization for national defense.

The president's message was read by Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, as part of a nationwide program carried on all three major radio networks.

Army and navy heads spoke from Washington; Charles P. Taft, assistant to McNutt as coordinator for health, welfare and related defense activities, from Indianapolis; McNutt from Los Angeles, and District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey, national chairman of the campaign, and Walter Hoving, president of the United Service Organization.

WASHINGON, June 3. (P)—Rigid restrictions on the use of oil, including "gasless Sundays," were suggested today by a committee of the petroleum industry, in the face of an acute shortage expected by July 1.

In a report to Secretary Ikes, defense petroleum coordinator, the oil men pledged their support "to any extent" to meet the anticipated emergency, and thus ward off a menace to the preparedness drive.

WASHINGON, June 3. (P)—The shortage is expected on the eastern seaboard, hub of defense production. It results from the transfer to British service of fifty of the approximately 250 tankers of America's coastwise fleet and the expected transfer of others.

Troop-Carrying Nazi Plane Shot Down Near Malta

Germans Conduct Two Day-light Raids on British Stronghold

VALLETTA, Malta, June 3 (AP)—A German Junkers troop-carrying plane, believed by British sources to be empty of soldiers, was shot down into the sea by fighter planes today during the second of two day-light raids on this British Mediterranean stronghold.

The communiqué did not disclose whether other Junkers troop-carrying planes took part in the second raids.

It was the third time Malta had been attacked in twenty-four hours by Axis raiders.

The communiqué said:

Two Attempted Raids

"Last Monday night enemy aircraft which approached the island were caught by searchlights and repulsed by anti-aircraft fire.

"This afternoon there were two attempted raids. The first was repulsed by defense batteries and during the second our fighters shot down into the sea a Junkers 52.

"During May twenty-one civilians were killed by enemy action."

The communiqué left unanswered how many planes were in the raids and whether the Germans or Italians actually had attempted a landing if other big Junkers were in the attacking force.

Is Invasion Planned?

The foregoing report aroused speculation as to whether the Axis meant to invade Malta as a stepping stone to the North African front as the Nazis took over Crete with parachutists, glider troops and soldiers landed by air transport plane of the type shot down off Malta.

Malta underwent its first air raid June 11, 1940, the day after Italy entered the war.

Since then, it has been bombed more than 450 times, the German air force having joined the Italians in the assaults last January.

The British have reported destroying more than 150 of the Axis raiders around Malta but have acknowledged unspecified damage at various times.

Fairness of Radio

to determine the names of speakers talking on the issues.

My had appeared before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee to oppose a resolution by Senator White (R-Me) requiring the communications commission to delay application of a set of regulations it issued recently.

The commission said the regulations were aimed at the "monopolistic practices" of the major radio chains. Under the rules, the National Broadcasting Company would be required to dispose of one of its two networks.

Both Obey Congress

Asked by Senator Smith (D-SC) how a monopoly could exist when three network companies were in competition, Fly declared that 86.6 per cent of the total night-time radio power in the United States was "swept up exclusively by two New York corporations (NBC and CBS)."

"Are they competing with each other or are these two in cahoots?" Smith demanded.

"I've thought from my observations that they're pretty footloose," Fly replied.

Property Seizure

said after a White House conference:

"I think it should be clarified."

May Fix Time Limit

The question was whether "permanently" meant "from here on out," the speaker said, and his remarks were taken to mean that some sort of time limit might be written into the measure.

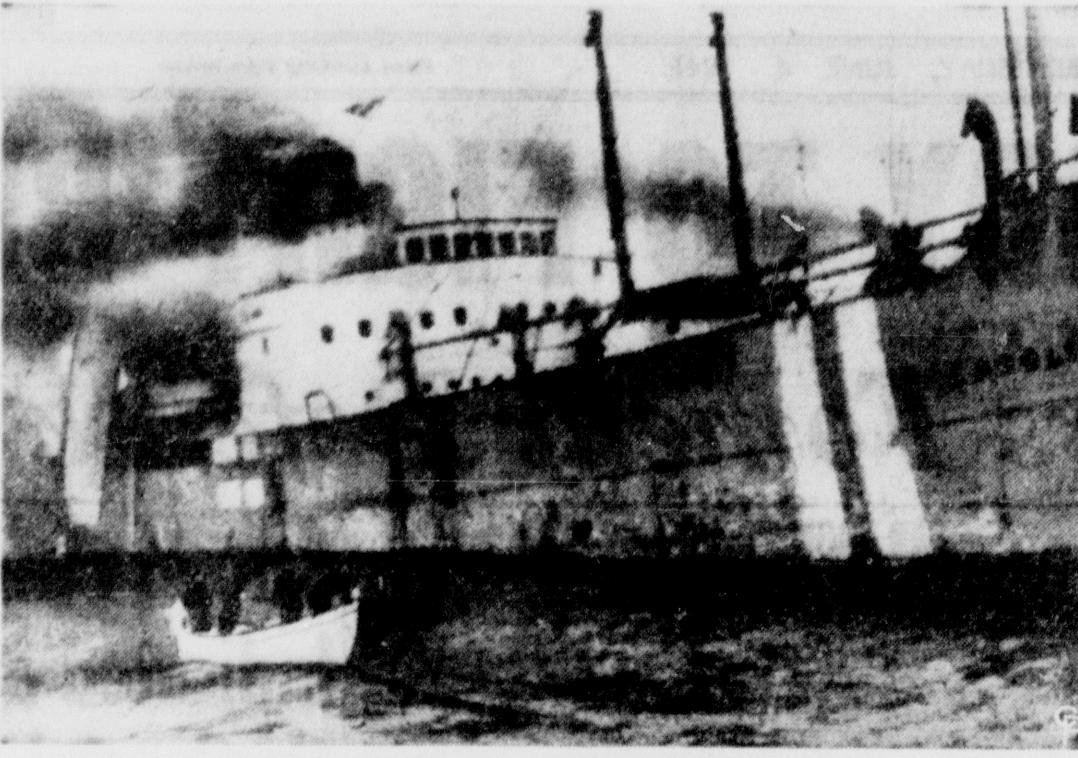

Rayburn was one of several congressional leaders who conferred with the president soon after the latter's return to the White House from Hyde Park.

Meanwhile, Secretary Knox called upon the nation's warship building industry for a production "miracle," asserting in a speech to a special conference of shipbuilders that the outcome of the war would be determined "by two things—no, one thing—a successful combination of sea and air power."

From the treasury came figures showing peace-time defense spending at a new high level of $27,000,000 daily and a total of $836,600,782 for May. The month's total was approximately five times that of last July when the steady rise in such outlays began.

At the same time, a Senate investigating committee learned that a number of new maritime commission cargo vessels had been converted into aircraft carriers. Maritime Commissioner John J. Dempsey who gave the information said that subsidies to shipping lines were rapidly becoming unnecessary because of the disappearance of foreign competition and so might be eliminated with consequent saving of many millions.

NEUTRAL SHIP BOMBED BY NAZI Fliers

A rescue boat approaches the burning 3,645-ton Finnish steamer Carolina Thorden after Nazi bombers set her afire off Thorshavn, Faroe Islands, between Norway and Iceland. Neutral markings are clearly visible on the ship which was en route to America. The lifeboat (left) dangling against the ship's side tells of the terror of her panic-stricken passengers.

Johns Hopkins May Shorten Courses

BALTIMORE, June 3 (AP)—A Johns Hopkins University committee is considering the possibility of inaugurating courses of three years instead of four to speed training of specialists in the national defense effort. President Isaiah Bowman announced today.

Dr. Bowman made his announcement at commencement exercises, at which diplomas were presented to 500 graduates and the honorary degree of doctor of laws was conferred upon Daniel Willard, a Hopkins trustee who recently retired as president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and became chairman of the board of directors.

Asserting that the university was "dedicated to national defense," Dr. Bowman said the three-year courses, if established, would be designed to expedite the training of such professional men as physicians, chemists, engineers and doctors.

St. John's College Graduates 15 Boys

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 3 (AP)—Bachelor of Arts degrees were conferred upon fifteen St. John's College graduates today at the college's annual commencement exercises under the historic liberty tree.

It was the first graduation of students who took the new, or 100 great books, course and the last graduation of those taking the old, or elective, curriculum.

Dr. Robert K. Gooch, the University of Virginia's political science professor who delivered the commencement address, told the graduates that "we must either defeat or accept the system of the dictators."

"Manifestly, the first alternative is far from easy," he said, "but if to defeat the system seems almost impossible, to accept it is completely impossible."

German Commander Praises Nazi Troops

BERLIN, June 3 (AP)—Field Marshal Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, praising his troops in their conquest of Crete, said he was certain they would "do your duty further, whatever the führer commands."

The order of the day:

"Soldiers! Crete is firmly in German hands. You mount troops, engineers, warriers, and other branches, together with comrades of the air, won this important enemy base in the shortest time. In unusually difficult terrain and weather conditions you once again proved in hard battles under trying conditions your fighting strength, bravery and superiority. The entire army is proud of the Crete fighters."

I thank you and know you will do your duty further, wherever the führer commands."

Roads Commission Hits Its Highest Activity

BALTIMORE, June 3 (AP)—The State Roads Commission now has under construction $5,262,839.41—probably the greatest activity it has engaged in since its formation. Chairman Ezra B. Whitman said today:

In addition, the commission today opened bids on nearly half a million dollars worth of projects, and it is expected that there will be no let-down for some time, Whitman said.

"We are confronted with more problems of major magnitude than ever before," the commission chairman continued. "We not only have the problem of keeping our highway system to modern standards but also we must build military access highways and relieve the intensive activity which has been created in our industrial areas."

Whitman said the commission hoped the federal government shortly would provide some of the $11,000,000 that will be needed for military "access" roads throughout the state.

The projects now under contract, a survey of commission records indicated, are scattered throughout the state and range in cost from about $10,000 to $850,000.

O'Conor Becomes Doctor of Laws

Governor Received Honorary Degree at St. Joseph's College

BALTIMORE, June 3 (AP)—Elmer C. Halderman, 57, and Archie Edwards, 23, convicted of attempting to hold up the Clearspring National Bank last December, stood silently in Circuit Court today and heard themselves sentenced to long terms of imprisonment.

Judge Joseph D. Mish gave Halderman, alias George W. Vincent, twenty-one years in the state penitentiary on two charges—fifteen years for his part in the holdup attempt and six years for cracking a safe in the office of the Maugansville Elevator and Lumber Company.

Edwards was sentenced to six years in the house of correction for participation in the hold-up, frustrated when Cashier George B. Haugh stepped on a burglar alarm and frightened the men away.

Addressing the St. Joseph's College graduation class, Governor O'Conor said "our colleges and universities must provide a positive leadership based on a realistic appreciation of the facts of the present crisis."

"Colleges have done a splendid job of technical training," he declared. "It is not enough that their graduates should know the facts. They must use them to promote institutions and philosophies that contribute to human happiness rather than detract from it."

"The college cannot afford to be passive or indifferent to the affairs of the world or the philosophies of its graduates. It must be a living force in shaping and reshaping the purpose and will of individuals, the community and the nation."

Bevin Says British Labor Will Never Yield to Prussians

LONDON, June 3 (AP)—Minister of Labor Ernest Bevin, in a trans-Atlantic broadcast to the National Conference of Social Workers in the United States, declared tonight that British labor "will never yield to the Prussian desire to dominate."

He accused the Germans of indiscriminately bombing the British people in "the belief if only the devastation is great enough they would succeed."

"For over a year," Bevin continued, "the people of this country have stood brutal attacks, but they've demonstrated that the character of people is not determined by station in life x x x."

"Perhaps the outstanding thing in this war has been the courage and resilience of the common people."

He praised the United States' good neighbor policy and said the goal of that country and Britain was achievement of a "correct equilibrium" by raising the standard of living and expanding the rights of free association.

I thank you and know you will do your duty further, wherever the führer commands."

The order of the day:

"Soldiers! Crete is firmly in German hands. You mount troops, engineers, warriers, and other branches, together with comrades of the air, won this important enemy base in the shortest time. ### Crib of Corn Pays Off Farm Mortgage

LOS ANGELES, June 3 (AP)—Lawrence C. Mosley, an elder in Wilshire Christian Church, told this story at a club meeting today:

"When I was a boy there was a tremendous corn crop in Kentucky. The price was so low we built a crib out of old charred oak boards to store it.

"Some children, playing under the crib and smoking corn stalks stuck some unused matches in the ground. They grew overnight. One grew right through a crack in the floor, hit the roof and set it afire."

"Along came a big rain and put the fire out in both crib and corn. For some time the damaged corn was left stand, until one day it began to leak."

"The eat went over and took a lick. Then she walked over to the horse and popped him right on the snout. Paw, he tasted the stuff and then we all bored holes in the crib, bottled the stuff and Paw made enough to pay off the twenty-two-year old mortgage on the place."

Scene of the story-telling was the annual meeting of the Liars' Club. The tale won first prize.

Military Funeral For Lt. Col. Lyon

FORT GEORGE G. MEADE, Md., June 3 (AP)—Full military funeral services were held today in the post chapel for Lieut.-Col. Thompson A. Lyon of the One Hundred and Fifteenth Infantry, who died Sunday from a self-inflicted bullet wound.

The funeral procession formed after the body of late commander of the First battalion had lain in state in the regimental recreation hall this morning. His battalion formed a guard of honor, and the second and third battalions and unlettered companies stood at attention along the route from the One-hundred and Fifteenth Infantry area to the chapel as the procession wound.

"More recent developments make united national action doubly urgent for all fronts," Mr. Roosevelt said.

"The campaign goal of $10,765,000 will provide necessary services in hundreds of towns and for many thousands of young men and women. From all of us who possibly can, contributing to this fund and for this purpose, is not only an obligation, but also an opportunity."

"Every man and woman in America wants to have a share in defending the nation. Contributing to the U. S. O. is one way — one important way — in which all can serve."

Bridges Friendly With Communists

Shares Common Ground with Them in Politics, He Declares

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3 (AP)—Harry Bridges testified at his deportation hearing today he frequently discussed political matters with the California Communist secretary and shared a common ground with Communists on many legislative questions.

A few minutes before the government ended ten hours of cross-examination, Albert Del Guerico, chief of government counsel, asked the CIO longshore leader whether William Schneiderman, state Communist party secretary, had asked him to support Gov. Culbert L. Olson.

"Oh, we discussed that on several occasions," Bridges said.

"And you were an alien and Schneiderman was an alien?" Del Guerico asked.

"I thought Schneiderman was a citizen," Bridges said.

Schneiderman was then a naturalized citizen. His citizenship was recently revoked and he is trying to have it restored.

"What else would your support be asked on?" Del Guerico inquired.

"Other political matters."

"You and the Communist party had a common ground on these matters?"

"That's true," Bridges said. "There are many legislative matters which the Communist party oppose which we oppose."

Earlier, Bridges denied he addressed a meeting of eastern seamen in New York in 1936 on orders of the Communist party, as government witnesses have testified.

Judge Joseph D. Mish gave

Many Irishmen Killed In Mine Explosion

WHITEHAVEN, CUMBERLAND, England, June 3 (AP)—William Pitt, 129-year-old colliery whose tunnels extend seven miles out under the Irish sea, was shaken today by an explosion which killed at least nine miners, injured thirteen and trapped many others.

It was feared the death list, still unofficial, would be increased as rescue workers dug into the debris. Among the missing, three were believed to have died.

The new annotated compilation, which will also include sample forms of incorporation, dissolution, revival and other procedures, also takes into account the new code numbers.

The Tax Commission is now receiving bids on the printing, Levin said, and the book is expected to go to the printers within a week.

Jealousy Often Causes Children To Feel Inferior

Parents Can Help Sons or Daughters To Win and Enjoy Friends

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

You might suppose, from reading that children are only jealous of a new baby. But the emotion is bigger and broader than that. It applies to all ages and no person escapes it all the time. Jealousy widens into feelings of not being worthy or acceptable, even into an inferior complex. It is well to look for jealousy as a possible source or contribution to any problem you find in the child's attitude or behavior, even if he has no brothers or sisters—shyness, sulkingness, stubbornness, bullying, teasing, tantrums, impudence, stealing, lying, even stuttering and nail biting.

You can do no harm if you suspect jealousy and proceed wisely with your guess. You could help the child to win more friends and enjoy them. You could try to set the stage so he might gain more successes and meet with fewer failures. You could try to help him compete with himself rather than with others and to build on his successes rather than his failures. Therefore, you would not compare him unfavorably with himself or others. You could be more generous with honest praise and less liberal with blame and punishment.

Children Need Affection

You could strive to be more affectionate, gentle, patient toward him, proving to him you could put yourself in your imagination, in his place.

A mother writes of her bright boy, Freddy, 5 1/2, who is "sassy" and very mean to his brother. The younger brother makes up with any one while Freddy is shy. People go out of their way to speak and joke with him and more or less ignore Freddy.

I told her to see that the young child respects Freddy's rights. Have him go to bed earlier than Freddy. In every possible way, prove to both boys that you consider Freddy much the bigger and older. Be patient about Freddy's sassiness. Praise him more when he is good and try to find ways of reducing your rebukes and punishment of him. As Freddy feels more secure emotionally and more worthy in the family and among his playmates, he will feel more at ease and will be kinder to his younger brother. Moreover, he will be happier, more cooperative and more lovable.

Solving Parent Problems

Q. Do you know a good way to help a two-year-old who has fear of getting into the bath?

A. Bathe him with a sponge while he has within his reach a basin of water with some toys floating on it. Later sponge-bathe him while he sits on a box in the empty tub with the basin of water and toys before him. Have these toys in the tub of water when he finally is put there gently with a towel about him to reduce the shock. Proceed from step to step slowly, gradually, patiently.

Graceful Cool Capelet Style

Marian Martin
PATTERN 9737

Here's a perfect "air-conditioned" frock for the larger woman—Pattern 9737 by Marian Martin. The graceful, fluttering cape sleeves with their soft shoulder lines are very new and make an ideal style for summer—they're free and airy but at the same time they see that the top part of your arms are well-covered. A wonderfully concealing treatment for a full bust, too. The front panel which curves to a point at the top, holds the softness of the cape in gathers just under the low neckline; another panel down the back skirt completes the slim effect. A second, more tailored version of the dress substitutes short gathered sleeves for the cape sleeves, and shows a deep, fuchia-effect front section.

Pattern 9737 may be ordered only in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 3% yards 39 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address, and style number.

Summertime means high time to order the Marian Martin Pattern Book! It's one of the most complete, well-balanced collections of dressmaking designs available, with real inspiration from cover to cover. Cottons for at-home and vacation-

Skunk Not Outcast In Tulsa--Residents Snap Up Zoo Supply

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—There's a big demand in Tulsa for skunks but Hugh Davis, zoo curator, doesn't know why.

Finding himself with eight orphan infants, he advertised for Tulsaans with mother cats to take care of them. The skunks were all given away the first day and Davis had calls for 16 more.

"After the skunks mature, the zoo probably will get most of them back," he opines.

Enoch Pratt Library Wants More Material

THE ENOCH PRATT FREE LIBRARY, BALTIMORE, needs more material for its archives and for two very good reasons. One is for the purpose of being more able to answer many queries it receives from many sources and the other is for the purpose of enhancing and preserving the annals of the state. It is, accordingly, appealing to Marylanders to supply it with such material wherever possible.

The library notes that often seemingly insignificant papers are really important, and cites some instances where certain historical gaps should be filled. The Maryland room is making urgent appeal for descriptive circulars of Isaac Sheppard's stove works and a picture of North Charles street in the 1830's, both in Baltimore; historical sketches of Calvert county published in a country paper, copies of The Price Current, a business weekly of Baltimore issued prior to 1820, early almanacs, political broadsides, election tickets, theatrical handbills and programs, school prospectuses and registers, and church bulletins. Such items pertaining to other places in Maryland as well as in Baltimore are desired.

The library suggests that Marylanders should not discard any printed matter pertaining to the state until the library has had an opportunity to hear about it and possibly to examine it. In the last few years, much valuable Maryland material has been destroyed by fires, and important files have been taken out of the state by libraries in other states, to the permanent loss of historical students in this state.

Co-operation of citizens in this respect would be of distinct advantage not only to the library but also to the people of the state in general of both present and future generations, and it should be freely given.

Time of All Times For Tolerance

THE VIRTUE of tolerance is often forgotten as public emotion is whipped up in a war-torn world. Bigotry and rash judgment, hasty conclusions followed by impassioned appeals are the real foes of the civil rights which are the basis of a democratic system. Freedom of speech and of the press and of religion—all the liberty which is the backbone of America—is firmly built on a tolerant attitude.

Too often the right to speak or print an individual's opinion is abused by name-calling or demagogic appeals to racial groups. Sometimes even the great American right of freedom to worship is abused by an unfortunate mixture of politics with religion. These abuses, always dangerous to the people's constitutional liberties, thrive on the heated passions of a world cracked open by international dissension, conquest and war.

Now, perhaps more than at any time in history, there is need in America for complete unity among its free citizens in the battle to maintain democracy here. There must be no quiescent acceptance of racial or religious intolerance nor any covert agreement to the abolition of human rights throughout the world.

But democracy must give understanding to Americans that they may listen to opposing viewpoints with analytical calm. Only by the active practice of tolerance can representative government be maintained in America.

Hughes's Place Will Be Difficult To Fill

RETIREMENT of Charles Evans Hughes as chief justice of the federal supreme court on July 1 will leave that august tribunal not only without the services of one of the court's outstanding jurists, but minus the advice and reasoning of one of the nation's most substantial Americans as well.

Charles Evans Hughes was seventy-nine last April. He first attracted attention before he was eight years of age when he had completed reading Shakespeare. At eleven he was preparing for college. His entire life was like that, always working, always forging ahead in the traditional American manner.

As governor of New York he gave the Empire state one of its best administrations. Gambling had become rampant and Hughes's anti-track laws and anti-gambling laws are still being talked about in New York state.

Later Mr. Hughes became secretary of state and served with distinction. Shortly before the entrance of the United States into the World war, Hughes ran for president on the Republican ticket. The morning after election newspapers throughout the land said he had been elected. It looked that way, but later in the day it was discovered that his opponent, Woodrow Wilson, would carry some of the states previously figured in the Republican column.

California was one of these states. It had been solidly Republican, but a fight within the party antagonized many voters and the state went to Wilson, giving him the election. To this day Senator Hiram Johnson is credited by many with having defeated Hughes.

Justice Hughes has latterly been known as a conservative although this is probably in contradiction to what today is sometimes mislabeled liberalism. In the early part of his career he was known as a liberal. So have the times changed; though perhaps Mr. Hughes's outlook has not changed after all. At any rate, it is pertinent to note that his side of the argument, whatever it may be called, is the side under which this country became what it is, or rather what it was before the advent of the New Deal.

Attorney General Robert H. Jackson will succeed Mr. Hughes, according to the politically wise. He is, of course, a New Dealer, but that will make little difference at present, the court already being strongly New Deal in its thinking.

The First Year Of the OPM

THE OFFICE OF PRODUCTION MANAGEMENT has come to the end of its first year with few persons satisfied with results. The most that Mr. Knudsen now claims is that "we have made a start." The most that his co-director, Mr. Hillman, claims is that "all-out participation of our nation's entire manpower in the defense effort has yet to be achieved."

In Washington, the political chorus stresses a refrain of failure to meet full expectations. There is New Deal pressure for a remaking of the present setup. There is even talk of the retirement of Mr. Knudsen, forced or otherwise. The enmity of political antagonists against business leaders in key positions adds to the confusions. The refusal of favored contractors to spread work among smaller manufacturers slows up production.

The lack of power where power should be concentrated to secure action is held to be due to the administration's unwillingness in any measure to yield White House control. There is criticism on this point from both the friends of the administration and from its opponents.

The result of all this is an unhappy condition which produces much dissatisfaction and perhaps not a small amount of unfairness in the effort to place responsibility. One reads of new projects started, expansions planned, orders placed, but no maximums of production achieved. The best that is promised is the hope for better result.

But hope is not enough in the circumstances. It is not enough to lay foundations. The demand is for the goods—goods not alone for others, but for ourselves. We are not getting those because we have not yet solved the problem of full co-operation—the co-operation that comes from intelligent planning, the co-operation that comes from concentration of directed power.

Hot Trading In Pepper

NOT MARY PERSONS would ascribe to Americans a passion for spices, but it is now being disclosed anew that Americans do like that has interested me since boyhood. It turned out to be a little local success—at least to the extent that another man, this year, decided to copy it—almost beam-for-beam, pillow-for-pillow and chair-for-chair.

Incidentally, disruption of sea commerce is cutting into the even flow of overseas spices to this country. Channels from foreign sources of supply are becoming scarce and as the stocks on hand in the United States begin to show danger of diminution, some traders have become over-eager.

Excited trading in black pepper supplies brought a turnover of 5,250 tons, or 10,500,000 pounds—equivalent roughly to one-third of the total pepper consumption in the United States for the cost of labor.

Of course in such tremendous trading the price climbed spectacularly and the federal agency known as the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply stepped in with a suggestion that margin requirements in pepper might be increased to at least $1,000 a contract and quieted things down somewhat.

An old saying is that if you put a mask on a man he will tell the truth. This must have been written before there were any baseball umpires.

Mars has, at last, got around to taking candy from babies. A good deal of our licorice we read, is imported from now embattled Iraq.

If Hitler is permitted to live to reach the ex-kaiser's age of 82, the world is even crazier than it was in 1918.

The ex-kaiser is sick, but not nearly so sick as the world was of him a quarter of a century ago.

Snap Judgments

By MARSHALL MASLIN

So you don't make a good impression on others? Pretty ladies look through you and don't know you are there. Nobody ever sees that beautiful soul of yours. Hardly anybody knows how remarkable you are. Few people care enough to look within you and see what you are truly like. They are always making Snap Judgments about you and they are always wrong—because the first impression they get of you is false.

It hurts you that other human beings should have such faith in their Snap Judgments. They're so cocky about their ability to judge your character at a glance. They're wonderful; they think they know everything—and they don't! They don't know that still waters run deep and first impressions are false and you're not what you seem.

Yes, but people are busy and they have troubles of their own. They have little time for violets, but the gaudy sunflower catches their eyes every time. And a Snap Judgment of you is all they have time for all you must expect. You can't expect them to say, "I don't like that fellow, but perhaps I am wrong. He looks like a grouch but he may have a heart of gold. He gave me a dirty look but I'm sure he means well. I'll cultivate him."

I remember a book of poetry written long ago by Robert Herrick and the first poem began thus:

"If thou dislik'st the Piece thou light'st on first, Think that, of All that I have writ, the worst."

But we can't go round the street saying things like that to people. We can't be telling them: "If your first impression of me is bad, you must remember that I'm a very fine fellow every other day in the week. I may look like poor strawberries today, but come around tomorrow and my big strawberries will be on the top of the basket again."

They won't DO that. They'll make snap judgments of us and we can do nothing about it but shine up our shoes and clean off our spots and wipe the sulk from our face and give them a good First Impression. And we will NOT take what we get. Because a Snap Judgment isn't the other fellow's fault. It is ours!

Oil Control Is Only One Needed Step, Gen. Johnson Says

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 3—

Hard as it may seem to justify it in view of other circumstances, the presidents' appointment of Mr. Ickes, as petroleum pooh-bah is obviously a step in the right direction. The "other circumstances" are chiefly that proration and other policies for oil conservation have already so far pinched in the development of new fields by "wild-cutting" and other "little fellow" operations, that we were already seriously restricted before this step. Many recent attractive prospects for the independent opening of promising new oil horizons have been turned down on the grounds that restrictions on production and confiscatory taxation made the gamble impossible.

In Washington, the political chorus stresses a refrain of failure to meet full expectations. There is New Deal pressure for a remaking of the present setup. There is even talk of the retirement of Mr. Knudsen, forced or otherwise. The enmity of political antagonists against business leaders in key positions adds to the confusions. The refusal of favored contractors to spread work among smaller manufacturers slows up production.

The lack of power where power should be concentrated to secure action is held to be due to the administration's unwillingness in any measure to yield White House control. There is criticism on this point from both the friends of the administration and from its opponents.

The result of all this is an unhappy condition which produces much dissatisfaction and perhaps not a small amount of unfairness in the effort to place responsibility. One reads of new projects started, expansions planned, orders placed, but no maximums of production achieved. The best that is promised is the hope for better result.

But hope is not enough in the circumstances. It is not enough to lay foundations. The demand is for the goods—goods not alone for others, but for ourselves. We are not getting those because we have not yet solved the problem of full co-operation—the co-operation that comes from intelligent planning, the co-operation that comes from concentration of directed power.

Just the same, as in the case with steel, electric power, aluminum and many other strategic materials, prompt federal regulation of use is a defense against inflation and other civilian hardships that could be a greater danger than the loss of battles in the field of armed conflict.

Fair and Careful

We all may rail at the howlings of Honest Harold on the hustings, but the petroleum and other industries know that he is a fair and careful administrator and, with the extremely efficient, scientific organization of the Interior department at his elbow, no gross errors are to be expected.

But why are we dallying on other methods of price and production control? Let's put aside for a moment the belated showings of price-charts and other economic barometers and go directly to the evidence of our own eyes and pocketbooks.

I happen to have had some part four years ago, in designing and planning the construction and furnishing of a small house in Delaware—a kind of avocation that has interested me since boyhood. It turned out to be a little local success—at least to the extent that another man, this year, decided to copy it—almost beam-for-beam, pillow-for-pillow and chair-for-chair.

Incidentally, disruption of sea commerce is cutting into the even flow of overseas spices to this country. Channels from foreign sources of supply are becoming scarce and as the stocks on hand in the United States begin to show danger of diminution, some traders have become over-eager.

Excited trading in black pepper supplies brought a turnover of 5,250 tons, or 10,500,000 pounds—equivalent roughly to one-third of the total pepper consumption in the United States for the cost of labor.

Of course in such tremendous trading the price climbed spectacularly and the federal agency known as the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply stepped in with a suggestion that margin requirements in pepper might be increased to at least $1,000 a contract and quieted things down somewhat.

Yet Mr. Henderson has not been permitted to act, why? Because it is as futile to attempt to control price advances without also being able to control advances in wages and rents as it would be to command: "Regiment halt—but all you soldiers keep right on marching."

Yet Mr. Henderson has not been permitted to act, why? Because it is as futile to attempt to control price advances without also being able to control advances in wages and rents as it would be to command: "Regiment halt—but all you soldiers keep right on marching."

It is a charge I've heard made before. Perhaps it's been true some of the time.

But take a look at our most strenuous anti-war alignment on Capitol Hill at present. Or, rather, take a look at 'em in the Senate. The representatives are a bit too numerous to analyze.

Clear of Draft Age

Those senatorial isolationists could perfectly well afford to be interventionists, so far as they themselves are concerned. There isn't one of 'em of draft age, or national bankruptcy an ever-present problem to keep out of hostilities if they possibly can manage it.

Youngsters Are Scrappy

In short, if the United States Senate's any criterion, all indications are that the youngsters are the scrappy bunch; that the oldsters have had enough experience to keep out of hostilities if they possibly can manage it.

Furthermore, it's traditional that each succeeding generation is ambitious to have its own generation's war. My generation had ITS war, back in 1914-18—and that was sufficient, so far as WERE concerned. It's the upcoming generation that isn't satisfied yet. The lad who wrote that vituperative letter to me appears to be an exception, but he's wrong about the oldsters, if the United States Senate proves anything.

I know what my angry correspondent means, though. His thesis is that a lot of decrepit old coots in Congress, in Parliament or in some other legislative body start wars, which they're too venerable to take an active part in, and then put it up to the younger generation to do the actual scrapping, bleeding and dying on the battlefield, afloat or in the atmosphere.

It's a charge I've heard made before. Perhaps it's been true some of the time.

But take a look at our most strenuous anti-war alignment on Capitol Hill at present. Or, rather, take a look at 'em in the Senate. The representatives are a bit too numerous to analyze.

Not the Real Voice of France

From the Christian Science Monitor

"To understand everything is to forgive everything." The saying comes, quite expectedly, from the French. Americans may wish to remember it now. For it is more representative of the true French character than are the bitter tirades against the United States now appearing in the Paris press.

Particularly disappointing is one that speaks as from Lafayette to President Roosevelt, with sharp sarcasm. Americans will never forget Lafayette, as the article states, but they will always associate him with a fight for freedom, not with a surrender to tyranny. Another of these articles is headed: "Flour Blackmail—American Charity Nothing But Means of Political Pressure." The editing of Berlin is all too plain in this press.

But this is the voice of France?

CAT MAGIC

Nobody Loved Him except the Cats—but That in Itself Was Enough to Bring People To See Him from Everywhere

BY MARTIN ROWAN

If the village of Putcheen Bawn on the west coast of Ireland hadn't been the seat of a Gaelic college in 1925, Dr. Schultz and Dr. Blanchette might never have come over from the continent to investi-

It was in 1923 that a government official in Dublin suddenly remembered that there was not a greater Gaelic-speaking district in all of Ireland than Putcheen Bawn and its immediate vicinity. The government decided to open a school where the student might get the unadulterated flavor of the Gaelic tongue. After the politicians had found out which contractor controlled the most pits at election time a grant was made, red-tape was cut, the school was built and the world and its wife came to Putcheen Bawn.

Well, a college in a sylvan retreat like Putcheen Bawn was a novelty, and rich widows came to spend their vacations. Matrons with marriageable daughters who had long remained unsought in their native terrain came with these potential wives. Bachelors of ancient vintage came to bask in the warm smiles of lad students. The upshot of the whole situation was that prosperity struck Putcheen Bawn. Butter and eggs which heretofore went for a song now were sold at a premium. Cottages assumed the dignity of hotels and each one valuable hadits contingent of paying guests.

Although many of the widows were still widowed and many of the designing matrons marched away in a huff with spinster daughters, and many of the ancient bachelors discovered that baldness and senility were but a sorry substitute for dark, wavy locks and the virility of youth, yet Putcheen Bawn continued to be a success as a center of culture and beauty. Sometimes the original tourists never repeated their visits but their was a new crop each season and so the welkin rang.

By 1930 the fame of Putcheen Bawn had reached the capitol of hours drinking rich, legendary love from the volatile lips of ancient men and women.

It was therefore no wonder that these intellectual giants discovered Dinnny McGuire. Dinnny, then in his eighties, was noted since early boyhood for a most peculiar gift. Dinnny was a cat charmer. No matter where he went the cats of the village followed him. He did not resort to fife or music like the Pied Piper. He did not sing or lilt or warble. The cats simply walked at his heels without any kind of barking.

Two brilliant men of learning came from Europe especially to study the case. One was Dr. Schultz from Berlin and the other Dr. Blanchette from Paris. They swooped down on Dinnny McGuire's cabin with notebooks in their hands. They brought a photographer who took pictures of Dinnny with the cats around him.

They inquired if he had any particular liking for cats as a child.

They wanted to know if he ever had any dreams of the feline species in his early boyhood. Dr. Blanchette examined the pupils of Dinnny's eyes and made notes. Dr. Blanchette measured Dinnny's mustache from tip to tip and inquired if he ever had any desire to crawl through a small hole by feeling his way with his whiskers. Dr. Schultz then put out the lights and tried to catch the glint of Dinnny's eyes in the dark.

They looked at coming on you yet. Dinnny," said one another in astonishment and others would bring you tame and shock their heads. They gave Dinnny toys would bring you fame and wealth on account of the strange gift you have."

For a month or more the local papers featured Dinnny and his strange gift on their front pages. said Dinnny, "for I'm a very old man National magazines at home and abroad carried articles written by secret."

He two great doctors about the Dinnny sat up in bed and laughed heartily.

It was about this time that death "You see, Mr. Burke," he said, came on Dinnny McGuire. Michael Burke, the schoolmaster, came in very careful about my shoes. I never had much money and could not afford to buy a new pair very often. It is not easy to save shoes in Putcheen Bawn where there is so much salt water. There is nothing better to preserve leather in this locality than butter. For that reason I greased my shoes with butter always. The cats used to follow me because they liked to lick the grease off my shoes.

Shrine Circus Opens Tonight At Stadium Here

Hamid-Morton Shows To Present High-Grade Acts

Unlike most circuses, the Hamid-Morton shows which are being sponsored by Ali Ghan Shriners, will stay for four days. Tonight's show begins at 7 o'clock while matinee performances are scheduled for Thursday, Friday and Saturday, starting at 3 p.m.

One of a number of thrilling acts with the circus is that of Capt. Roman Prosek, wild animal trainer who does not use a chair or gun for protection against a troupe of Royal Bengal tigers.

Besides various formations and stunts he puts his jungle charges through. Capt. Prosek actually thrusts his head into the mouth of one of the animals.

The Great Peters' is another high-spot in the show. He hangs himself but lives. Peters adjusts a noose around his neck and then jumps from a high rigging head first.

The Wallendas ride bicycles atop a high wire for another fine act.

The imitable Antaleks present four women who do daring stunts with a high pole. They are among the greatest aerialists in the world.

The famous Henneford family of bare-back riders include comedy besides difficult equestrian stunts.

Other acts are Christy's elephants, trained horses, monkeys, ponies and mules. He also has a troupe of Doberman Pinschers a good trained dogs. Trapeze acts and myriad other performers are scheduled to be present.

Accidents Are Far More Numerous During Summer Vacation Months

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

The United States is the healthiest large nation in the world. That statement recently appeared in the Pennsylvania State Medical Journal and is something we should ponder. In the first place it is worth while pointing out to the bureaucrats that this was accomplished largely under private practice of medicine. In the second place it is a good thing to show to those who are trying to scare us about how we are starving from lack of vitamins and how we have eight or nine different kinds of shadows on our land.

The United States today has reached the highest peak of health that has ever been accomplished in the history of the world in an area as large. This is not saying that there is not a good deal left to do, but at any rate that is the record to date.

April Healthiest Month

We are entering now the healthiest period of the year. Beginning with April, and extending on to about the first of October the incidence of disease falls astonishingly. With the beginning of school in the fall and the greater contagious diseases that means, the contagious diseases begin. With the tendency to crowding indoors into theatres, movies and concerts, respiratory infections begin again in the fall, but these things drop out with the beginning of summer.

The healthiest of all months is April because then even accidental injuries fall. The average United States daily death rate from accidental injuries per month is about 285. The average for April is about 251. It is only slightly higher in May. This is understandable because the ice is off the streets and roads. The skidding of automobiles is reduced to a minimum, and all accidents associated with the hazards of icy streets are eliminated.

Accidents in July

But, and here is an object lesson, the worst month for accidental injuries in July when the daily average rises to 367 deaths from accidental injuries. This is almost entirely preventable. The roads are not dangerous so far as nature makes them dangerous in July. They are only dangerous because man is careless. Later on also the summer hazards of swimming, boating, electricity and lightning cause a rise in the toll.

The longer days of midsummer add to the dangers of that period. This is a rather sad reflection meaning simply that the more time man has, the oftener he kills himself from carelessness.

It is not the daylight itself which is dangerous, because figures show that most automobile accidents and in fact drownings occur more frequently in the twilight period when people are inclined to think they can cheat the darkness and push on just a little bit further.

Easy Pleasant Way TO LOSE FAT

How would you like to lose ten or more pounds in a month and at the same time feel better perhaps than you have for years?

How would you like to lose your double chin and your too-prominent hips and at the same time feel more youthful and be more attractive?

How would you like to get your weight down to normal and at the same time develop that urge for activity that makes work a pleasure?

Get on the scales today and see how much you weigh, then get a bottle of Kruschen Salts which will last 4 weeks and is inexpensive—take one-half teaspoonful in a glass of hot water before each meal. You can eat more meat and fatty meats—go light on white bread, potatoes, butter and cream. When you have finished this first bottle, weigh yourself again.

Start today girls to get a more graceful, charming, slender figure. Leading drugists all over America sell Kruschen Salts. If you don't like it—return it—no refund—no extra charge.

AT BUNKER HILL the order was to "hold fire until you see the whites of their eyes." That type of tactics can win also at bridge, when the situation justifies them. You hold up your winners on trick after trick because you see that by doing so, you can make two tricks bloom where one existed before.

ducked it, and ducked again when the heart 3 brought the Q, overtaken by the K, to block South's hand. Striving desperately, the declarer then led his spade A and 6, which Mr. Hazen ducked for his third hold-up, the J winning.

Seeing that he could not re-enter his hand, South then tried to find an even break in spades, in preference to trying the club finesse, seeing that the diamonds of West might be a six-card suit and East might now be out of them. But West discarded a club on the spade, and that hope was gone. The 10 won, the K dropped the Q, the cantankerous heart A that had blocked South now came home, and Mr. Hazen had a diamond left to lead to West, who cashed three tricks there. South was down one, and his taking of the last trick, in clubs, was no consolation.

Fine defense on this hand produced a top score for Edward N. Marcus, of Boston, in the West, and Lee Hazen, of New York, in the East, when they became partners during the national individual masters' tournament. It furnished a good illustration of the sort of deft work which won the championship for Mr. Hazen.

Mr. Marcus led the diamond K, and when the dummy went down, the attorney for the defense in the East saw that setting the contract at all would probably be a very good result. He played his 9 so the suit would be repeated, the A winning the J. When South, a former winner of the event, then sent the heart J through, he read this as probably from a five-card suit, so

FORCING FRUIT
ON CUCUMBER VINES

Cucumber plants are lovers of sunshine, warmth and moisture. When the young plants form their third pair of leaves and all danger of attack from beetles is past (beetles only attack the seedlings) thin out the plants, leaving the strongest three vines in each hill.

If the cucumber plant should happen to run to vine growth fruiting can be forced by pinching off the ends, as shown in the Garden-Graph.

Do not allow a cucumber plant to go to seed. If a fruit is allowed to ripen, the normal growth of the vine will be checked.

Stocks Stage Best Rally in Two Weeks, but Lose Part of Gains

No Outstanding News To Mirror of Markets
Account for Brisk Upswing

By BERNARD S. O'HARA

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP) — The stock market today put on the best rally in about two weeks with little in the way of outstanding news to account for the upswing.

The list, hesitant at the start, began to climb near mid-day and gains ran to a point or so for active leaders and around 2 for a handful of "blue chips." Dealings were lively for a brief interval, then slackened. Closing prices were under the tops in many instances.

The Associated Press average of sixty issues held a net advance of 4 of a point at 40.1, largest for any single session since May 20. Transfers totalled 417,940 shares, also the biggest turnover since May 21, they compared with 255,308 yesterday, one of the smallest volumes since last August.

Brokerage explanations of the comeback varied. Most felt the buying revival was due principally to the fact selling had dried up virtually nothing in the face of depressing war developments, labor rifts

Bonds Are Irregular

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP) — Medium-priced railroad bonds and a selected group of industrials and utilities tacked on gains of fractions to a point or so today as the general list remained hesitant with a steady undertone.

Trading was enlivened considerably in the final hour when there was a burst of selling in German government issues and brokers were unable to find any specific piece of news to account for it.

Transfers of $5,222,400 par value were light, as bond volume goes, but well ahead of $4,006,300 on Monday. The Associated Press average of twenty rails added 2 of a point and the industrials and utilities 1 each.

Joan Crawford
In Dramatic Hit

Thrills, excitement and stark drama mingle with heart-interest in "A Woman's Face," story of a woman turned criminal through ugliness, who works out her regeneration with a new-found beauty. Starring Joan Crawford and Melvyn Douglas, with Conrad Veidt in a powerful supporting role, the picture comes tomorrow to the Maryland theater.

Miss Crawford plays the scarred woman, enemy of mankind, restored to beauty by Douglas' plastic surgery, but the slave of a criminal madman, played by Veidt. The struggle between the two men, one offering sanctuary from a cruel world, the other a chance to change her fate, provides gripping moments.

George Cukor, responsible for such hits as "The Philadelphia Story" and "The Women," directed, and Victor Saville, of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" fame, produced. Players include Osa Massen, Reginald Owen, Albert Bassermann, Marjorie Main, Donald Meek, Connie Gilchrist, Richard Nichols, Charles Quigley and Gwilym André.

Amid the dramatic and poignant heart moments are thrills such as a wild cable ride over a roaring gorge, a breakneck race against death in sleighs drawn by galloping horses, and other exciting episodes.

"Thieves Fall Out"
Has Fun, Romance

Plenty of fun, loads of laughs and romance with a spice to it, all combine to make "Thieves Fall Out," the new Warner Brothers picture which is now playing at the Liberty theater, lively film entertainment that should please audiences young and old. Eddie Albert and Joan Leslie, two of the screen's most likeable young players, head the cast. In the supporting roles are Jane Darwell, Academy Award winner, Alan Hale, William T. Orr and many others. "Thieves Fall Out" was directed by Ray Enright.

Rita Hayworth, to be seen with Tyrone Power and Linda Darnell in "Blood and Sand," now at the Strand theater has become known as Hollywood's most-photographed actress.

The beautiful star cannot move from her home without being trailed by movie fans, armed with cameras of all kinds.

Fan magazine editors, women's page editors, and fashion editors cannot get enough of her pictures, and deluge her studios with constant requests for photographs.

Rita, who is cast as the amorous temptress, Dona Sol, in "Blood and Sand," the Twentieth Century-Fox Technicolor film produced by Darryl F. Zanuck, is quite a sun-worshipper.

The play suits and sun suits she wears are very fetching, but when she was being fitted for the evening gowns she wears in the film, it was discovered that the marks of the halters and straps interfered with the wearing of a gown. I was either no more sun or the privacy of a saloon.

Rita compromised by building a ten-foot fence around her house.

APPEARING IN "A WOMAN'S FACE"

Fulfills Lifelong Ambition -- in Film

Bertie Churchill's judicial ambitions, which he sidetracked forty years ago for an acting career, were realized in part during the filming of Elsa Maxwell's "Public Deb. No. 1," the 20th Century-Fox comedy which comes today to the Garden theater. Churchill is featured as a judge in the new picture which has George Murphy and Brenda Joyce in top featured roles.

During his youth, Churchill had always aspired to the law, hoping eventually to become a judge. He decided, however, upon graduation to take a theatrical job that was offered and he has been acting ever since. Now, after a forty-year wait, Churchill becomes a magistrate — on the screen.

The Salinas River bank set on which was filmed the final scene of Hal Roach's "Of Mice and Men," the film drama now playing an engagement at the Garden theater, covered two sound stages and looked haphazard and unpremeditated, as all of nature's scenic designs. The river ran sluggishly as a wounded snake, its yellow surface carrying COPENHAGEN (AP)—"Peat weddings" are Denmark's latest. Men seeking well-paying jobs in the peat field must prove that they have wives. Since use of peat instead of coal seems likely to continue until the war is over, a wedding in many cases is a stepping stone to a nice steady job.

ARMY OFFICIALS TEST AMPHIBIAN SCOUT CAR

Roger W. Hofheins, the inventor, drives his amphibian scout car in the Niagara River, at Buffalo, N.Y., as a test for army engineers. The craft has a three-bladed propeller and four wheels, powered by a regular automobile motor. A chain-drive permits the wheels to bob up and down over rough ground, where it can attain a speed of sixty miles an hour.

DEATH AT THE SWITCH

By RICHARD HOUGHTON

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
Henry Potter starts to walk to the storm-shielded men's voices.
"Perhaps," the big man mumbled, turning his collar up around his neck again. "But how do we know there isn't something in what she believes?"
"You don't really think . . ."
"No, I doubt that John Ives will be at the meeting tonight—but I'm not sure. None of us will be sure. Uncertainty will lurk in our minds. Suppose it is possible for him to come back?"
Henry shivered in spite of himself.
"That father of hers," observed Jones, changing the subject. "He's a little childish."
"I wonder that Mr. King trusts him. I wouldn't want him around my place!"

"What does the old man do for King?"
"He gardens on the King estate. It's a big place. King got it by a foreclosure years ago—before I came to this part of the country. I understand it used to belong to a large and very rich family."

Henry flushed. "It's silly, nothing for the man who's guilty. Nothing will happen."

"I don't agree with you. As I said, it will be a psychological test. The murderer will give himself away."

Mrs. Willett's father was on his feet, his eyes wide. "Ives and I've done it! We've talked with the dead! And I've seen them!"

His daughter laid a restraining hand on his arm. "Come, Father! You shouldn't get so excited. I promised to read you a story. Go find a book."

Mr. Jones rose and picked up his hat. "Well, time we were going. You've been quite a help to us, Mrs. Willett. We'll let you know how the test comes out."

"Oh, couldn't I be there?"

"Um-m," replied Jones. "On second thought—you haven't a spare room in your house, have you?"

"Would you want us to come and get you?"

"Oh, no. Father will walk down with me."

Henry observed, "The club meets around 8 o'clock."

"Nothing. I have a habit of thinking out loud."

"Okay," agreed Jones. "Make it 8 o'clock. Goodby, then, Mrs. Willett, until tonight."

She followed them to the door, but did not step out in the rain. Henry, as he opened his umbrella, turned and looked back. Her dark eyes were shining in her white face. She was not looking at the two men, but at something far beyond them. She said no word as they started down the path.

"A queer woman," commented the little clerk as soon as the storm-shielded men's voices.

"Perhaps," the big man mumbled, turning his collar up around his neck again. "But how do we know there isn't something in what she believes?"

"You don't really think . . ."

Henry observed, "The club meets around 8 o'clock."

"Nothing. I have a habit of thinking out loud."

"Bad habit. You ought to try to stop it. It might be dangerous—some time."

Henry was thinking silently this time, that there would be a distinct advantage in having a detective as a roomer. Perhaps Henry could turn the tables by watching him instead of being watched. If there was any chance of getting to the bottom of this murder maybe Detective Jones would show the way. Henry could at least study them.

"What was that you said?"

"Nothing. I have a habit of thinking out loud."

"Okay," agreed Jones. "Make it 8 o'clock. Goodby, then, Mrs. Willett, until tonight."

She followed them to the door, but did not step out in the rain. Henry, as he opened his umbrella, turned and looked back. Her dark eyes were shining in her white face. She was not looking at the two men, but at something far beyond them. She said no word as they started down the path.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—The recruiting officer said "It's too bad" when Merlin Vandewege, six feet six and one-half inches, applied for entrance into the Army Air Corps.

"You're too tall to qualify."

The other day Vandewege returned, and without stooping or bending measured six feet five and three-fourths. He offered no explanation and is in the Army now. The sergeant still is scratching his head.

College Glee Club Sings Composition Of Keyser Woman

"Potomac Swing" Is Effort of Mrs. Katherine M. Church

KEYSER, W. Va., June 3—A feature of the concert given tonight by the Potomac State Singers, glee club at the college here, was the singing "Potomac Swing," composition of Mrs. Katherine Moore Church, former head of the department of music at the college and wife of President E. E. Church.

Mrs. Church said the piece, of which she wrote both words and music, about four years ago when she was music department head, was introduced to the students and caught on. It has become the official college song.

Tonight's concert, directed by Leonard G. Withers, present musical director at Potomac State, assisted by Mrs. Church, was presented in answer to popular demand. The Singers, appearing at various church services and community events and in smaller groups before local clubs and organizations, were so well received that a movement was set under way to have them present a complete program.

The concert tonight, held in the Keyser schools auditorium, included: "Gloria Patri," Palestina; "Send Forth Thy Light," Balakirev, and "Hear Me Pray," a spiritual, by the Singers; "The Song of the Mountains," Cadman, and "The Trumpeter," Dix, by William Loy; "Alexander," Parks; "Mosquitos," Bliss; "Pastoral," Maley, and "Ole Ark's a-Moverin'," a spiritual, by the double mixed quartette.

"In These Delightful Pleasant Graves," Purcell; "Morning," Speaks, and "Hospodi Pomilii," Lvovsky, by the Singers; "If God Left Only You," Denismore and "My Lover Is A Fisherman," Strickland, by Clara Spotts; "When Summer Is Gone," Wilton-Sims, by Clara Spotts, Mrs. Church and the Singers; "America, Block and "Potomac Swing," Katherine M. Church, by the Singers.

Marriage Is Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Rumer, Moline street, announce the marriage Sunday of their daughter, Giovina Deborah Rumer, to Donald Everett Bratzel, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bratzel, Maple avenue. The ceremony was performed at 3:30 p. m. in the Presbyterian Manse in Marietta, Ohio, by the Rev. Edwin B. Townsend.

Claussen To Speak Before Convention

Bedford County Sabbath Schools Will Meet at Centerville

Vacation Bible School

BEDFORD, Pa., June 3—The Bedford county Sabbath schools will hold their annual convention at Centerville, Bedford valley, in the Methodist church, June 11 and 12.

Outstanding leaders in the field of Christian education have been secured to speak and lead the divisional conferences for the two days. The Rev. Bernard G. Claussen, D.D., pastor of the First Baptist church of Pittsburgh, will address the convention on Wednesday evening, June 11. Dr. Claussen is well known as an educator, radio expert and lecturer.

To lead the children's division, Miss A. Roberts, children's division superintendent of the Pennsylvania State Council of Education has been secured.

The Rev. Robert J. Black of Harrisburg will lead the young people in their conference periods.

The adult groups will be in charge of Professor William Mowry, assistant superintendent of the public schools of Bedford county.

"Christian Education Challenges the World" will be the theme of the convention. All the devotional periods will develop the theme.

The registration committee has assigned a quota of delegates to each of the fourteen districts.

First Mine Paychecks In Logan, W. Va. Results In Jail "Overflow"

LOGAN, W. Va., June 3 (AP)—One hundred and forty-one persons found the prosperity of the first big paycheck since the April mine shutdown a little too much and as a result ended their revelries in the county jail.

The number of weekend guests, most of them charged with being drunk or breaking the peace, was the largest in many months.

They are William Arnold, Dumire, Benbush; Cecil Glenn Vanscoy, Portwood; William S. Taylor and Webster William Phillips, Hambleton and William Kalar, Portwood.

Two more volunteers were accepted in the draft board office this week. They are Clyde Levi Harsh of St. George and Claude Cecil Plum of Parsons.

Mills To Be Enlarged

The Dorman Mills, Franklin Dorman president, is enlarging the mill to take care of the surplus stock. The room will be 60 by 115 feet and will be constructed of brick. Contract has been let by the Parsons Hardware Company of Parsons.

Guild Meets

The Arnon guild of the Presbyterian church in Parsons held its regular meeting at the home of Miss Eileen Gutekunst on Monday evening. The president of the guild, Mrs. Arthur Valenting, had charge of the business session. The guild voted to landscape the grounds around the church and to hold a rummage sale on June 18. Two guests, Mrs. Blain Corrick of Parsons and Miss Ruth Puckett of Richmond, Va., and ten members were present.

Meeting To Be Held

The Wesleyan service guild and the Women's Society for Christian Service of the St. John's Methodist church will hold a joint meeting in the church parlor on Thursday, June 5, at 8 p. m., and will have as their guests the Women's Society of the First Methodist church.

The program is to be in charge of Mrs. J. Harold Felton and Mrs. Jason Wolford, and the fun will be in charge of Mrs. Sted Tahane.

Play Is Presented

The public presentation of John Kirkpatrick's comedy hit "Charm" by the pupils and teachers of the West Virginia School for the Blind in the auditorium last evening received favorable comments from those who witnessed the play.

Last night's presentation climaxed a five-weeks course in the art of play production given to the pupils and teachers of the School for the Blind under the direction of Howard Leeds, a representative of the American Foundation for the Blind, New York city, as an experiment being carried on in several such schools throughout the country with the thought in mind of enabling persons handicapped by blindness to acquire poise and self assurance through the medium of dramatics.

More than fifty children are enrolled. Teachers are Miss Lila Pet Thurston, Miss Ruby Grier, Mrs. Frank Goff and Miss Virginia Morris. Helpers are Mrs. Colleen Bonner, Geraldine Shaffer, Cecilia Ann Stalmaker and Jean Orr Valentine.

The course for the beginners is "Happy Times In Our Church"; Primary course, "Bible People Who Loved God"; junior course, "Let's Learn about the Bible" and the intermediate course is "How to Use the Bible."

Blind Bowlers

NEW YORK (AP)—Blind men like to bowl. Forty-two entered the Lighthouse Bowling League's championships.

Sports World Mourns Death of Lou Gehrig

Many Baseball Notables Will Attend Funeral

New York Flags Lowered to Half-Staff -- Hundreds View Body

By JUDSON BAILEY

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP) -- Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Lou Gehrig in the same semi-privacy in which the great first baseman of the New York Yankees battled disease for two years.

From all parts of the country messages of condolence today poured into Gehrig's home and the offices of the ball club. Baseball notables arranged to be here for the last rites and fans who never had been closer to him than the bleachers of Yankee stadium, filed past his bier for one final look at the unforgettable "Iron Horse" who played 2,130 consecutive games in fourteen years.

For hours after his body was placed on view in an up-town funeral parlor tonight, baseball fans and notables filed past the bier. Babe Ruth, his old teammate, and Bill Klem, veteran National League umpire, were among those who arrived early, threaded their way through the huge crowd outside the building and paid tribute at the flowerbedecked casket.

A minute of silence in Gehrig's memory was observed at the National League games at the Polo Grounds and Ebbets field and flags on public buildings throughout that metropolis were lowered to half-staff at the direction of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia.

The mourning was so general that arrangements were made for the public to view the body this afternoon and night instead of limiting this privilege to intimate friends. During the hours the casket was open, first at the Church of the Divine Purity in Upper Manhattan and later at the Christ Episcopal church in the pretty Riverdale section of the Bronx, hundreds of persons passed through.

Funeral at 9 a. m.

They included residents of the neighborhood, policemen, laborers, men and women from all walks of life, and many boys, fumbling baseball caps and gloves in awkward hands as they looked for the last time on an old hero. They were members of a class baseball team at the High School of Commerce where Gehrig himself began his sports career.

But the funeral at 9 a. m. (EST) tomorrow at Christ church, a little chapel a block from Gehrig's home, was to be limited to the family and friends.

Manager Joe McCarthy and catcher Bill Dickey of the Yankees arranged to fly here from Detroit. Dickey, who was Gehrig's roommate in the ball club's travels for many years, some time ago promised his friend that he would come from wherever he might be in the event of death.

William Harridge, president of the American League in which Gehrig starred, headed from Chicago in company with Leslie O'Conor, secretary to Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis.

Body to Be Cremated

Honorary pall bearers named included Mayor LaGuardia; McCarthy; Dickey; John Kieran, sports columnist of the New York Times; Christy Walsh, publicist; John Maher and Mary Prasch, members of the municipal parole commission on which Gehrig served for the last year and a half; Dr. Caldwell B. Esselstyn, his personal physician; and four members of the staff of Mayo clinic, Drs. Paul O'Leary, Henry Woltman, Harold C. Harbin and Bayard T. Horton.

Edward G. Barrow, president of the Yankees, headed a group of Gehrig's close personal friends who were named as ushers.

Following the services tomorrow the body will be cremated.

The death of the 37-year-old former star ball player, who shared with his one-time teammate, Babe Ruth, most of the slugging records in baseball, came peacefully last night while his wife, the former Eleanor Twitchell of Chicago, his parents, his mother-in-law, and his physician stood by.

He had dropped out of the Yankee lineup voluntarily May 2, 1939, after fourteen years of never missing a game. The next month his disease was diagnosed as "amyotrophic lateral sclerosis," a hardening of the spinal cord which causes the muscles to shrivel.

Accepted Mayor's Offer

Although he never played again he remained in uniform with the Yankees for the remainder of the season and after the World Series that fall accepted Mayor LaGuardia's offer of a position on the city parole commission.

This job paid only $5,700 compared to the $39,000 exclusive of World Series proceeds Gehrig received in 1938, his peak year with the Yankees, but in the remaining days of his life Gehrig turned with a consuming passion to the task of rehabilitating other unfortunate.

He had to receive an injection in his back daily for two years, rest punctually and retire at 8:30 each night. But this restrictive routine never interfered with his going to his office each business day as long as his strength allowed. The final tortuous stages of his ailment caused him to make the trip in a wheel chair, however, and about a month ago he gave up going altogether.

He sat by the window of his home and insisted to each of the friends who visited him that he would "lick this thing." Finally yesterday shortly after noon he went to sleep and never awakened.

Chisox (Not) Hitless (Nor) Wonders, But--This Is Day of Ersatz

NEW YORK, June 3 (AP) -- The fans of Cleveland and Brooklyn have had a long time to wait for the pennants that may come to them this season--twenty-one years, to be specific--but what about that dark and dangerous horse that is stalking Cleveland this year, the Chicago White Sox?

The Sox have waited twenty-two years to do what James J. Dykes is threatening to do with his ball club today. For that matter, the Boston Red Sox have waited twenty-three years, the Philadelphia Phillies twenty-six years, the Boston Braves twenty-seven years, and the St. Louis Browns forever.

Brooklyn and Cleveland are just a couple of recent winners, chronic champions, by comparison. Their game is revolving. Let 'em take their places in line.

Ho The Pale Rose!

To become practical for a moment though, it doesn't look as if the Browns, who would have first claim in any gentleman's game, can make it this year--or the Braves, who come next in line of etiquette, or the Phils, or even the Red Sox. At this writing, the team with the best chance to break up the Brooklyn-Cleveland reunion is the Dykes' despoilers, the Pale Rose, the Chicago club which last broke into a World Series in 1919, the year of the great swindle.

These Sox, called Black Sox of 1919 were not only the greatest of all Sox teams, but perhaps the greatest ball club ever put together, with virtually the same players they won the pennant in 1917 as well, and on that occasion, treating themselves to the luxury of an honest World Series, they licked a New York Giant team that was far stronger than the Cincinnati Reds who beat the Black Sox in the crooked World series.

You remember the names of the Sox of 1917-18-19. All of them were great and some were notorious--Eddie Collins, Dick Kerr, Red Faber, Ray Schalk, Shano Collins, and Nemo Liebold on the Alkaline side, and takers like Eddie Cicotte, Joe Jackson, Buck Weaver, Fred McMullin, Hal Felsch, Lefty Williams, Chick Gandil, and Swede Risberg on the other.

When I last saw Mr. Dykes, the current white hope of Chicago, on his travels, he was digging farther back into history for a parallel for his 1941 team.

Hitless Wonders--Almost

"From what I've heard," said James, decapitating a stooge, "that 1919 team, Black Sox or whatever you want to call 'em, was great all along the line, fast, full of power, great pitching and great hitting. I'd be kidding myself if I said that my team is the same kind of outfit. Maybe we have no business up where we are. Maybe we have. But anyway, we're not great."

Now, there was another White Sox team that won the pennant once, back in 1906. The "Hitless Wonders," they called 'em. That's our speed. We're not absolutely hitless, and we're not wonders, but we depend on pitching and a nice, tight style of game, and we have to hustle for the runs we get. Nobody expected those Hitless Wonders to come through, did they? Well, maybe that's our cue. But don't win me a pennant on paper, boy. We'll have to work for it.

The Hitless Wonders, if you recall, and 1906 is a long time ago. Calvin Coolidge, who was paid $1 a word, would have written long, long time ago, depended on a tight defense and the great pitching of Ed Walsh, Nick Altrock, and Doc White. The pitcher later called "No-Hit" Smith--he pitched two no-hitters in subsequent seasons--was on the payroll then, and so were Frank Owen, Roy Patterson, and Louis Fierce, but Walsh, Altrock, and the White were the workers and the trouble-shooters.

When they came up to the World Series with the heralded Cubs, the Hitless Wonders in the infield were Jiggs Donohue at first, Lee Tannehill at short, and George Rohe, a rookie replacement, at third. Phil Jones, the manager, was flanked in the outfield by Dougherty and Hahn. The catcher was Billy Sullivan.

It's true that Rohe broke up two games with triples, and that Isabel hit four doubles in one game, but on the whole the Hitless Wonders lived up to their notices. Ed Reulbach held them to a single hit in one game, and "Three-Fingered" Brown shut them out. But Altrock pitched a four-hitter, Walsh hurled a shutout, White was strong in the last game, and the first miracle teams of modern times came into being with a World Series victory, four games to two.

If Mr. Dykes wants to go places, he will have to get rid of some of his hitters. That Tatt Wright is too strong for his own good. And what's Joe Kuhel doing on the club? He whalers the ball a mile.

Scouts Eye Brock

Big league scouts have been three deep watching Frank Brock play second for Rutgers.

month ago he gave up going altogether.

He sat by the window of his home and insisted to each of the friends who visited him that he would "lick this thing." Finally yesterday shortly after noon he went to sleep and never awakened.

Haney's Tip To Forget Stalling Makes Galehouse Pitching Ace

By TED NORDNESS

ST. LOUIS, June 3 (AP) -- Pitcher Denny Galehouse has all the snap of a military salute these days and there's no more stalling on the mound.

No longer does he telegraph his pitches so plainly that even the batter knows what is being served up next.

As a result, the big righthander nearly pitched himself into the hall of fame with a one-hitter against Washington, and followed that heroic feat in his next start with a four-hit performance against the New York Yankees.

At this stretch he's blossomed out as the pitching mainstay of the St. Louis Browns.

It wasn't always thus, however. From the day to do what James J. Dykes is threatening to do with his ball club today. For that matter, the Boston Red Sox have waited twenty-three years, the Philadelphia Phillies twenty-six years, the Boston Braves twenty-seven years, and the St. Louis Browns forever.

Brooklyn and Cleveland are just a couple of recent winners, chronic champions, by comparison. Their game is revolving. Let 'em take their places in line.

Hughes Gives Cubs One Hit as Phils Win 7-0

Novikoff Secures Only Bruin Blow In Eighth Inning

Former Baltimore Twirler Faces 21 Men First Seven Frames

PHILADELPHIA, June 3 (AP)—Twenty-one year-old Tommy Hughes gave Chicago only one hit—a single by Lou Novikoff in the eighth inning—today as the Phillies shut out the Cubs, 7 to 0.

The tall righthander from Ashley, Pa., purchased from Baltimore this spring, pitched flawless ball against the Cubs for seven innings, facing just twenty-one men.

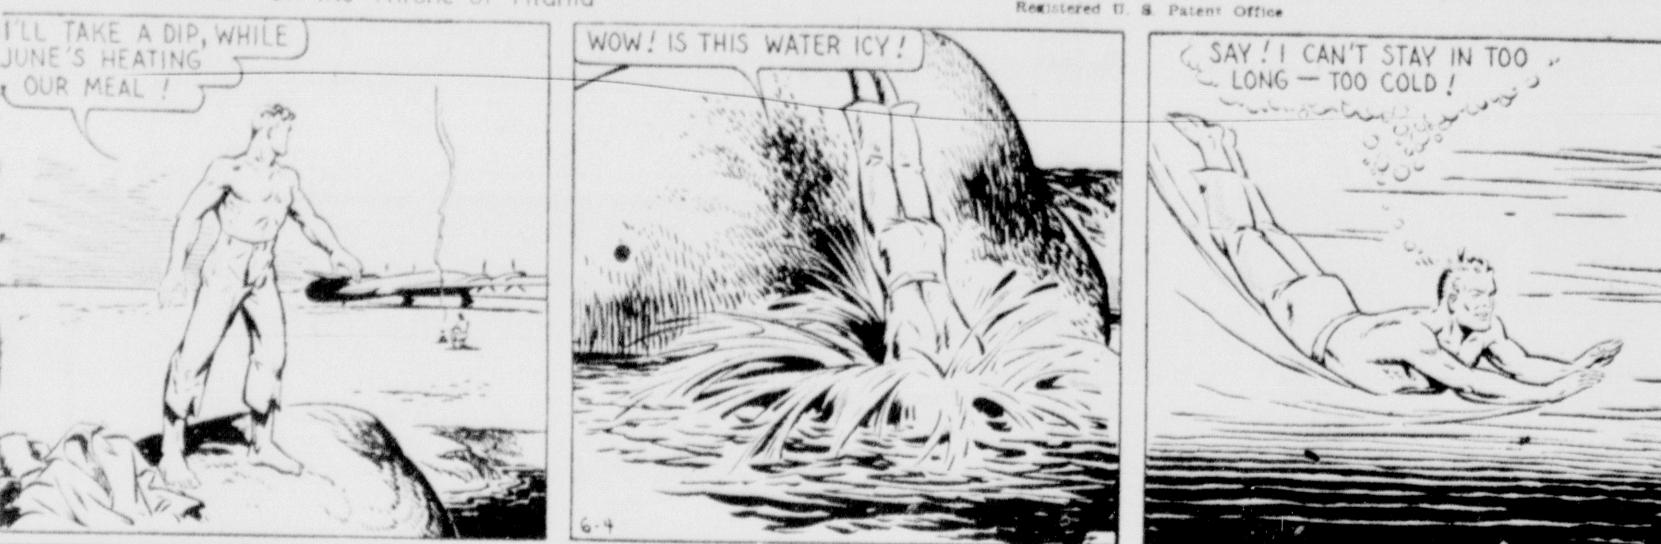

In the eighth, Hughes gave up two walks—his first and last of the game—besides Novikoff's single but a hidden ball play worked by Shortstop Bobby Bragan prevented Chicago from getting a man on third base. Hughes fanned six, got two hits and drove in a run. The box-score:

Low Cost Hospital Service Offered Under Group Plan

Small Monthly Payments Will Provide Three Weeks Hospitalization

Endorsed by the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society, a low-cost group hospitalization plan will be offered in this section within the next few days, it was announced yesterday.

The Hospital Service Plan, offered by the Associated Hospital Service of Baltimore, provides a method by means of which subscribers and members of their families, by paying a small sum each month, become entitled to twenty-one days hospital care in any year in semi-private accommodations at no cost to themselves.

Other Expenses Included

This "free" hospital care also includes operating room expenses, laboratory fees and x-rays, if necessary. Persons desiring a private room pay extra, according to the price of the room.

Only groups of employed persons are eligible for the service, it was pointed out, with factory and office groups admitted as subscribers only after a percentage of the personnel applies.

The cost of subscribing to the plan is seventy-five cents per month for a single person; $1.50 monthly for a man and his wife, and $2 monthly for coverage of an entire family. The size of the family has no bearing on the expense, since the family group includes man and wife and all children from the age of three months to nineteen years.

Endorsed by Medical Society

Simultaneously with the announcement of the plan by Western Maryland's three hospitals, Dr. Emmett L. Jones Jr., secretary of the Allegany-Garrett County Medical Society, announced that the society, after a thorough investigation, had placed its stamp of approval on the plan.

The residents of Allegany and Garrett counties will readily recognize the benefits of the Hospital Service Plan, Dr. Jones said. Its method of paying hospital bills at such low costs to the subscriber will be a great boon to those who may require hospital care in the future.

"It has been found that hospital patients whose minds are free from worry recuperate faster than those whose minds are burdened with outside cares. The business of getting well should come before that of paying bills in the minds of hospital patients.

The Hospital Service Plan is a step in the right direction. The members of the Medical Society are behind the movement 100 per cent, and we're sure our fellow citizens will accept the plan with enthusiasm."

Sponsored by Hospitals

Officials of the three hospitals in this area—Memorial and Allegany here and Miners hospital in Frostburg—also praised the plan, representatives of each comprising committee which studied the plan in co-operation with the Medical Society. The plan is being presented under the sponsorship of these hospitals.

Harvey Weiss, superintendent of Memorial hospital, declared on behalf of the board of directors that (Continued on Page 10, Col. 7)

Records Office Is Busy Place

Eighty-four Conditional Sales Contracts Filed at Court House

Yesterday was another busy day in the records department in the office of Circuit Court Clerk Robert Jackson, with eighty-four conditional sales contracts among the instruments recorded.

Continuing to reflect a brisk credit business, the conditional sales contracts were chiefly for furniture and automobiles.

Also recorded were eight deeds and three chattel mortgages.

Deeds included a "straw man's deed" by which Luigi Cifola transferred to Ursula Hartman property on Virginia avenue in the "Counter-ville" section for the purpose of having it immediately reconveyed to him and his wife jointly. Other deeds were:

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard L. Reck, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kohlihass, Mr. and Mrs. Ferris J. Denning and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Slicker to Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence M. Logsdon, property in Corriganville.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin A. Fuller to Mrs. Virginia M. Sullivan, Charles C. Sullivan and Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Hutchison, property near Evitts creek, between Williams road and Oldtown road.

Mr. and Mrs. Leo C. McDonald to Rutledge Yonker, property in Cumberland.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Webster Yonker, property on the Town Creek road near the old Amon Ash grist mill.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutledge Yonker to Richard H. Yonker and Francis R. Yonker, the Cumberland property previously conveyed to Rutledge Yonker by the McDonalds, part of the old Davis Town Creek farm tract and other property, subject to a life interest in favor of the grantors.

First National Bank of Mt. Savage to Lillie M. Finzel, two properties in Mt. Savage.

Francis H. Ruge New Game Warden For This County

Frostburg Man Appointed to Post Vacated by Minke's Promotion

Francis H. Ruge, of Frostburg, has been appointed district deputy game warden for Allegany county, it was announced yesterday by Regional Game Warden Joseph A. Minke.

Ruge's appointment, effective June 1, fills the vacancy left by the promotion of Minke to regional warden a year ago. The Frostburg man served temporarily in the post for two months last autumn, during hunting season, and two months this spring, during the fishing season.

His new appointment, made by State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte and approved by the Maryland State Game and Inland Fish Commission, makes him a regular salaried employee under the state merit system.

Ruge will continue to live in Frostburg and will cover that end of Garrett county, as well as part of Allegany county, according to Fulcher P. Smith, a member of the Maryland Workshop for the Blind shall have authority to issue licenses to blind persons who are citizens of the United States and at least twenty-one years of age, for the operation of stands in all state, county and municipal buildings located in public parks, playgrounds and other recreational centers, for the vending of newspapers, periodicals, confections, tobacco products and other articles except alcoholic beverages.

Custodian Must Approve

The law also provides that the construction of said stands and the location thereof shall meet with the approval of the custodian having charge of the building in which the vending stand is to be located, but such vending stands shall be permitted to be installed in all public buildings mentioned wherever physically practicable except where stands already have been established.

The act specifically states that the Maryland Workshop for the Blind shall have full supervision and control over the operation of the vending stands and shall, within its discretion, have full power as to who shall be placed in charge of each stand and may, when it deems proper, provide the equipment for said stand as well as an adequate initial stock of suitable articles to be vended therefrom.

House bill No. 111 provides that an applicant for a trader's license to sell, barter, or otherwise dispose of goods, wares or merchandise other than any alcoholic beverage shall produce a signed certificate from a registered optometrist of the state to the effect that the applicant has a defect in his vision amounting to twenty-two per cent less.

To Penalize Violators.

If the applicant shall also make affidavit that he is the bona fide proprietor of the establishment, the clerk shall receive the sum of $6 before granting the license applied for. Any person, including any registered physician, specializing in the treatment of eyes, who shall violate or conspire to violate any of the provisions of the law shall, upon conviction thereof, be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than $300 nor more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both.

And so the commish phoned the taxi office and sure enough the car belongs to one of the drivers. It developed the flat while he was at work last night and had not got around to fix it.

Seeing that the cabby will have to pay a buck anyhow, Orr merely told him to provide some action by way of moving the car or he would have a towing charge to pay.

And that's the end of the story of the commissioner to the rescue.

Washington Man Is Arrested Here

It was erroneously stated in yesterday's News that Robert E. Shroud, Jr., 324 Waverly Terrace, was ordered held in trial magistrates court under $500 bond for a charge of assault with intent to kill. Instead, he posted bond for a hearing yesterday.

The case was dismissed by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., when the prosecuting witness, William Underdonk, 22, of 617 Louisiana avenue, dropped the charge. It was indicated that the men had adjusted their dispute.

Seriousness of Situation Demands Sacrifices, Chamber Speaker Says

Support of President and Co-operation of All Urged by Mullaney

It will have upon the future of the this country and our individual lives, but that it will have an effect upon every one of us no one can deny.

Those who heard or read the speech can have no doubt as to the President's intentions, he said. "War supplies of all kinds will be delivered to Great Britain. That he has promised. The means to be used were not disclosed, but it is perfectly obvious that it involves the use of our navy and our men to see that American merchandise reaches the desired destination."

The call was sounded by Matthew J. Mullaney, Cumberland attorney, in the weekly broadcast of the chamber of commerce over Station WTBQ.

Use of Navy Involved

Referring to President Roosevelt's "momentous" address last Tuesday, Mullaney pointed out that it is impossible to predict just what effect (Continued on Page 10, Col. 1) the speech will have upon the future of the this country and our individual lives, but that it will have an effect upon every one of us no one can deny.

Although "our preparation for defense in the manufacture of supplies for Great Britain has been recently completed the firm's post-graduate course in advance underwriting.

O'Conor Signs Blind Bills Sponsored by Charles See

New Laws Relate to Trader's Licenses and Vending Stands Throughout State

Charles M. See, chairman of the Allegany county delegation at the 1941 session of the Maryland House of Delegates, yesterday was notified that acts relating to the operation of vending stands by blind persons and to trader's licenses for persons with defective vision have been signed by Governor Herbert R. O'Conor and became effective on June 1.

See was informed of the governor's action in a letter from A. J. Bourbon, executive secretary to the state's chief executive.

Both bills were introduced in the house of delegates on January 16, and were jointly sponsored by Thomas Conlon, speaker, and See, who has taken a great interest in legislation for the blind because of the fact that he is blind himself.

House bill No. 110 provides that the Maryland Workshop for the Blind shall have authority to issue licenses to blind persons who are citizens of the United States and at least twenty-one years of age, for the operation of stands in all state, county and municipal buildings located in public parks, playgrounds and other recreational centers, for the vending of newspapers, periodicals, confections, tobacco products and other articles except alcoholic beverages.

Custodian Must Approve

The law also provides that the construction of said stands and the location thereof shall meet with the approval of the custodian having charge of the building in which the vending stand is to be located, but such vending stands shall be permitted to be installed in all public buildings mentioned wherever physically practicable except where stands already have been established.

The act specifically states that the Maryland Workshop for the Blind shall have full supervision and control over the operation of the vending stands and shall, within its discretion, have full power as to who shall be placed in charge of each stand and may, when it deems proper, provide the equipment for said stand as well as an adequate initial stock of suitable articles to be vended therefrom.

House bill No. 111 provides that an applicant for a trader's license to sell, barter, or otherwise dispose of goods, wares or merchandise other than any alcoholic beverage shall produce a signed certificate from a registered optometrist of the state to the effect that the applicant has a defect in his vision amounting to twenty-two per cent less.

To Penalize Violators.

If the applicant shall also make affidavit that he is the bona fide proprietor of the establishment, the clerk shall receive the sum of $6 before granting the license applied for. Any person, including any registered physician, specializing in the treatment of eyes, who shall violate or conspire to violate any of the provisions of the law shall, upon conviction thereof, be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not less than $300 nor more than $1,000 or imprisoned for not less than thirty days nor more than six months, or both.

And so the commish phoned the taxi office and sure enough the car belongs to one of the drivers. It developed the flat while he was at work last night and had not got around to fix it.

Seeing that the cabby will have to pay a buck anyhow, Orr merely told him to provide some action by way of moving the car or he would have a towing charge to pay.

And that's the end of the story of the commissioner to the rescue.

Washington Man Is Arrested Here

It was erroneously stated in yesterday's News that Robert E. Shroud, Jr., 324 Waverly Terrace, was ordered held in trial magistrates court under $500 bond for a charge of assault with intent to kill. Instead, he posted bond for a hearing yesterday.

The case was dismissed by Magistrate Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., when the prosecuting witness, William Underdonk, 22, of 617 Louisiana avenue, dropped the charge. It was indicated that the men had adjusted their dispute.
